

Galvanic Spa Featured in Norwegian Magazine

On February 19th, a well known Norwegian Woman's magazine released an article titled, "Less Wrinkles in 10 Minutes". The article describes how the Nu Skin Galvanic Spa was used by 9 woman and each one had positive results!

Below you will find an English version of the Norwegian article.

LESS WRINKLES IN 10 Minutes

Is it possible to iron away our wrinkles? The ladies of Norwegian Weekly Newspaper were rather skeptical before they tested out the new "Wrinkle Iron" that's on the market. The results were very surprising!

Who wouldn't want to be wrinkle-free and young - without having to inject chemicals or undergo facial surgery? There is a "wrinkle iron" now available on the Market. Galvanic Spa II is the name of the apparatus that deep cleans and tightens the skin, while delivering moisturizing benefits. And the results promises to be young, smooth skin with a new glow. But does the product deliver what it promises?

Nine hopeful, but skeptical ladies of Norwegian Weekly decided to test it and they were absolutely shocked. After using the device on half of the face of the women, the effects on the skin of all the participants were similar. At least for a while...

SAFE OPERATION

"I was absolutely pleased. My cheeks have gotten a lift and my skin is as smooth as a baby's bottom. It was like a skin makeover" said a gloating Nina as her hand glided over her cheek. She got 10 minutes of treatment exactly with the device that looks similar to a shaver without the blades. Nina and the others on the panel noted there was no tingling or heat. It was just pain free and relaxing.

I have worked with skin for 17 years and I am used to working with large machines for professional use only. But learning to use the "Galvanic Spa II", it's the first time anyone can do this type of treatment at home, says cosmetologist Mona Hatloy Kristiansen (43), who administered the treatments to the women.

Use of galvanic currents (like currents; they work in the same way as magnets: like poles repel each other) is not new, but a do-it-yourself device is a bit of a revolution, says Mona.

"The Wrinkle Iron" is made by American company NuSkin Enterprises and came on the market last year. Wider consumer use started last fall. The device is easy to use, but you must follow the directions to get the best possible results, emphasizes the cosmetologist. Two types of water based gel must be used with the device. First the skin is washed well, then for five minutes the device is used with the negatively charged gel. The device glides over the face and throat, infusing the gel deep into the skin. After five minutes the machine beeps to signify the end of the first treatment. The remaining gel is removed easily. Next, the positively charged gel is put on and the user glides the machine over the face again. The gel actively works into the skin, stimulating cell renewal while depositing nutrients. This phase also takes 5 minutes.

SMOOTHER SKIN

The results from the test panel proved that in fact, everyone was 'smooth and relaxed' on the treated side of the face, even though it may not show well in photographs. The cheeks were lifted, especially by the chin.

The burning question is "will it last?" Norwegian Weekly's ladies said that after two days the skin went back to its 'old self.' They were not sure if they would bother with the process twice weekly, but gave positive feedback for the wrinkle iron. To begin with, we recommend treatments twice a week for three months. Thereafter, just once weekly. It's completely safe, so anyone can 'iron' themselves as often as they would like, said the cosmetologist.

TESTIMONIALS FROM ARTICLE

Cecile (62) - First, I was both skeptical and anxious. I have never come across anything like this, but it was both pleasant and positive. I would never do surgery or anything chemical, but I will readily iron my face – as long as I learn how to do it properly.

Tjodunn (39) - This was relief for a tired mother of a small child. I noticed that my face was definitely tighter and lifted on that one side, and I feel pleased with the result.

Grethe (38) - I had absolutely no expectation that this would work, but I was very pleased. The tiny lines and my pores became smaller it seemed. I just hope that it lasts a while. The question is whether I would feel like using the device as often as I should to get the effect I see.

Bente (49) - It felt like warmth coming from inside. My skin became soft and pretty. I thought it would be a humbug, but I was positively surprised. I saw the difference both under my eyes and around my mouth.

Merete (55) - This is something I didn't expect. There were clear differences between the treated side and the untreated side of my face. I must have this device!

Eva (62) - It tingled in my face, and I think the deep lines from my nose corner to my mouth are considerably reduced after "the ironing".

Nina (47) - During the first part of the treatment it tingled a lot in my cheek and I thought it tasted a little like amalgam in my mouth! But afterwards I must say that my facial skin felt soft like a baby's bottom. Doesn't it look like I am relaxed on that one side?

Anne-Grethe - (54) - The principle that gets the blood flowing is logical. My skin is lifted and has a new glow. I see the difference.

Unn (54) - I won't believe it till I see it, I thought, but now I have to really believe it! My skin appears warm and the bags under my eyes became smaller. My face became tighter and firmer. It was fun.
